

Rosenthal's Removal Sale.

Unusual opportunity to buy high-grade Men's Furnishings & Hats at Great Reductions!

Our entire present stock must be disposed of before we move across the street—November 1—to 931 F street, as we will open there with an entirely new stock.

Great reductions have been made on all lines; some goods are being offered below cost; some at cost, and we're making a special discount on most of the new fall goods which have just arrived. These are only a few of the items:

75c and 50c Cravats (fall styles).....	29c
50c "Esco" Thread Silk Sox.....	29c
35c "Esco" Silk Sox.....	23c
50c Genuine Guyot and President Suspenders.....	36c
25c Fine Linen Initial Handkerchiefs, 6 for.....	$1.19
75c and 50c Ribbed Balbriggan Underwear.....	37c
$1.25 Chamois Ribbed Underwear.....	85c
$1.50 Neglige Shirts.....	79c
$2.75 Sweaters.....	$1.95
$15 Double Texture Raincoats.....	$9.95
$20 Double Texture Raincoats.....	$13.95

Broken Lots of Hats.
New styles, but broken sizes.
$3.50 and $3 Hats.....$1.65
$2.50 Hats.....$1.19

J. E. Rosenthal, 932 F Street.

Take the Elevator

And Save from $1.00 to $3.50 on Your Shoes at the

Colonial SAMPLE SHOE SHOP

Hundreds of women have found the elevator that leads to "Footwear Economy." If you have been paying regular prices for your shoes, come to this establishment and feast your eyes on the classy footwear we are offering at manufacturer's prices and less.

This Season's Smartest $4.00, $5.00 and $6.00 Footwear at the Uniform Price of $2.50

Every desired style and leather. Fifteen-button High Boots in tan, gun metal, patent leather, suede, vici, satin and velvet. Evening Slippers in patent leather, suede and satin in all colors.

Washington Loan & Trust Co. Bldg.
Fourth Floor. Cor. 9th and F Sts.
Open Saturday Evening Until 9:30.

QUALITY CONSIDERED, our prices are absolutely THE LOWEST quoted anywhere at any time.

Faithful Reproductions

—of all noted types of Period Furniture are among the attractions offered by this store's carefully selected stocks of Homefurnishings.

Whether you be familiar with this class of furniture or not, you will find pleasure in inspecting the many elegant specimens we've assembled.

We are also showing a great variety of distinctive designs in Wall Papers, Draperies, Laces, Rugs, Carpets, etc.

Fine Interior Decorating of every character.

R. W. & J. B. Henderson,

Fine Furniture, Wall Papers, Draperies, Laces, Rugs,
1109 F Street and 1108 G Street.

Two Specials at Blackstone's Saturday

KILLARNEY ROSES

AND FANCY VARIETIES OF DAHLIAS

50c Per Dozen Each.

These Blackstone Specials are exceptional values, and will attract widespread attention.

Blackstone
14th and H Sts. N. W.
Phone M. 3707.

PHILBROOKS PENNILESS, COURT ADVISES COUNSEL

Man Accused of Murdering Employer to Be Given an Early Trial.

Special Dispatch to The Star.
UPPER MERIDON, Md., October 13.—Harry W. Philbrooks of Newport, Me., who was indicted by the grand jury here yesterday for the murder of Frederick Springmann, was arraigned before Chief Judge John P. Briscoe this morning, and, upon representation that he had no friends nor means to employ counsel, Attorney Marvin Beach and George Merick were assigned to defend him. The case was set for trial next Tuesday.

In answer to questions of the court, Philbrooks said his parents were dead. He said his brothers and sisters were scattered over the state of Maine. An aunt and uncle lived at Newport, he said, but said they could give him no financial assistance, even though they were communally with.

Counsel for Philbrooks held a conference with Prosecutor M. Hampton Macdonald immediately after the arraignment, and it is expected a date for the trial will be determined upon late this afternoon.

Schuchardt Pleads Insanity.

Attorney T. Van Clagett, representing Edward Schuchardt, charged with shooting and killing his wife, Gertrude, Sunday, September 24, near Collington, Prince Georges county, entered a special plea of insanity.

State's Attorney Magruder, in outlining the people's case, said he would show that Schuchardt came to Collington the day before the alleged murder, flourishing a revolver and making threats to use it. He said Schuchardt slept that night at the shack in which his wife lived with the children, and that she succeeded in obtaining the revolver and locking it up in a trunk. Schuchardt, he said, obtained the key to the trunk on the pretext that he wished to get a can of coffee kept in the receptacle. He said Schuchardt's wife ran in fear from the place, after which he went to the adjoining woods and made a feeble attempt to end his own life with the gun. He was taken to a Baltimore hospital, and recently removed to the jail at Upper Meriden.

Considerable trouble was experienced in getting a jury, many of the takersmen asserting they did not believe in capital punishment, one of them explaining his attitude by replying by reading the Ten Commandments, "Thou shalt not kill."

Says He Feared Wife.

Attorney Van Clagett said it would be shown on behalf of the prisoner that his wife once attacked him with a butcher knife and that he had reason to fear she would take his life. The taking of testimony started at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Witnesses from Baltimore will be examined tomorrow.

Hillary Bacon, colored, who several weeks ago set fire to a house at Chillum, Prince Georges county, from which he had been evicted for non-payment of rent by the owner, Enos Ray, sr., was sentenced today to seven years in the penitentiary.

It is likely John W. Morgan, alias Jackson, the youth who confessed to holding up the bank at this place, and who is charged with the theft two years ago of $1,150 from George A. Gill of Hyattsville, Md., will be sentenced tomorrow.

SYNDICATE ACQUIRES LAND ALONG PROPOSED CAN LINE

Forty Acres of M. Wilson Offutt's Farm Reported Purchased at $1,200 or More an Acre.

In connection with the proposed construction of the new electric railroad from Chevy Chase via Bethesda to Great Falls, much interest was aroused among property owners in the section of Montgomery county to be traversed by the line by the sale which was reported to have been closed yesterday afternoon, by which R. E. L. Yellott and Jasper W. Long took an option on forty acres of the farm of M. Wilson Offutt at a price between $1,200 and $1,300 an acre.

It is understood that these two real estate brokers, Mr. Yellott and Mr. Long, who are acting on behalf of a syndicate of capitalists, already have acquired title to upward of 400 acres of land in the county land, this is a large acreage being included in a number of farms which they succeeded in acquiring rather than by the method of first taking options.

As soon as the route of the trolley is definitely determined and the broker has acquired the remaining options which they desire, active work will be begun toward the construction of the railroad and the building of the boulevard, which are to parallel each other through the entire stretch of territory, and thus open up to settlement one of the largest and most fertile suburban sections in the vicinity of the capital. Survivors have been working on the ground for several days, and preliminary plans for the route to be followed by the trolley and by the boulevard.

HANGING FROM SADDLE.

Dorah Smith Unconscious When Runaway Horse Is Stopped.

A runaway horse with an unconscious girl hanging by one knee to the saddle today furnished to the downtown business section about all the excitement it could require.

Dorah Smith, it is understood, never had tried horseback riding until now today, when she and a companion started from the vicinity of the Mall and headed for F street. Crossing Pennsylvania avenue Miss Smith's horse set a pace of its own choosing, and when the rider found her horse unable to check its pace the animal became thoroughly frightened and started to run away. Miss Smith, who was unconscious, and she was being dragged, hanging from the saddle, when a crowd of excited men ran into the street and stopped the horse.

Miss Smith was carried into a nearby store and when revived she was found to be uninjured, but suffering from nervous shock.

Mrs. Barber's Condition Critical.

Mrs. Annie Leonard Barber, who recently was injured by a fall, is reported today to be dangerously ill at the family residence, 138 North Carolina avenue southeast. Mrs. Barber is the wife of J. E. Barber of the Post Office Department.

Careless Treatment Ruins Complexion

(From Woman's National Journal.)
Wrinkles and other telltale marks of advancing age are frequently caused by the excessive use of powders and cosmetics, which clog pores and cause the surface skin to grow yellow and lifeless. "Dew's face," wrinkles and other complexion faults can be made to vanish quickly by massaging a plain mayonaisse lotion into the skin until it disappears. To make the lotion, dissolve a small original package of mayonaisse in a half pint of white basil and it is ready. Using this greatly reduces wrinkles and blemishes and leaves the skin soft, smooth and exquisitely beautiful. The mayonaisse lotion is especially effective in removing obstructions and pimples, as well as in discouraging hairy growths.

"P-B" CLOTHES AT THE BALL GAME.

WELL GROOMED WASHINGTONIANS HAVE A PREFERENCE FOR PARKER-BRIDGET CLOTHES—they have a confidence, born of experience, in our ability to design models that are exclusive in style and fabric and MODEST in price.

"P-B" Clothes are always strictly COSMOPOLITAN without even a suggestive hint of provincialism—our FABRICS are always guaranteed. The VARIETY of WEAVES, PATTERNS, COLORS is so great this Fall that we cannot go into details in print.

May we have the pleasure of showing you the new Fall Suits and Overcoats tomorrow? Our Salesmen are courteous and painstaking in their efforts to please.

Clever English Models.

The Newest English Oxford Grays, those popular rough fabrics already in demand. Prices are—

$25 and Up.

MODISH "TECK" SHOES AT $3, $4, $5 and $6. See the Teck English Boot.

Distinctive Styles.

Rich patterns in Grays and Browns—light and dark shades—that forecast fashion's trend for men—

$15, $18, $20 and up

Furnishings de luxe—new novelties in Shirts, Ties, Hosiery, etc.

The English "Hawthorne"

Rough Cheviots in black and blue only, featuring the popular soft roll coat—an English style for Washington's better groomed men.

$25 $30 $35

Hat styles men like—they are decidedly different—
$2, $3, $4, $5.

COLLEGE CLOTHES.

Those popular rough fabrics in the leading American and London styles, for young fellows, pleasingly priced—

$12 to $20

The STEERING WHEEL

By ROBERT ALEXANDER WASON
Author of HAPPY HAWKINS
Copyright, 1910, The Bobbs-Merrill Company

CHAPTER XXXII.—Continued.

As soon as Lorrain had entered the private office Lorrain had got down from the stool and had placed his ear at the keyhole. He had indeed, as he had explained, that he was Lorrain's brother and that Lorrain was desperate enough for anything.

Lorrain had turned white with rage when Dick had ordered him to take back the term, and when Dick had taken a step forward and placed his hand to his hip pocket.

At this moment the door opened and Lorrain entered. The three men stood in strained positions for a moment, and then Dick said, with cool hauteur: "Mr. Lorrain, you seem to have forgotten my instructions. No one is allowed to enter this office without my permission. That is all."

Lorrain looked at his brother, at Dick, but receiving no notice from either, with drew and closed the door.

"Lorrain," said Dick, advancing toward him, "I am going to do you the undere served honor of whipping you in the good old American style."

Dick's fists were doubled into large, hard lumps, and in his eyes was the gleam of combat. Lorrain backed toward the door marked "Fire President," drew a revolver and pointed it at Dick.

"Put that thing up," ordered Dick. "Now, understand the conditions perfectly. I shall not have a gun, and a hidden police call, in the outer office are two men who would die for me, but I want a fight, a real fight. I need it, and I insist that you put up that gun."

Lorrain laughed contemptuously, and there was not a trace of fear in his laughter. "I shall not put up the gun," he said. "I hate you. You must not think that because I condescended to live with ruffians for a while, that I shall also brawl with them. You are nothing but a bully. I have nothing to win or lose in life now, and before I leave I am going to get even with you."

"Not yet," answered Dick, with a peculiar smile. "I shall not have a gun, and a hidden police call, in the outer office are two men who would die for me, but I want a fight, a real fight. I need it, and I insist that you put up that gun."

Lorrain laughed contemptuously, and there was not a trace of fear in his laughter. "I shall not put up the gun," he said. "I hate you. You must not think that because I condescended to live with ruffians for a while, that I shall also brawl with them. You are nothing but a bully. I have nothing to win or lose in life now, and before I leave I am going to get even with you."

"Not yet," answered Dick, with a peculiar smile. "I shall not have a gun, and a hidden police call, in the outer office are two men who would die for me, but I want a fight, a real fight. I need it, and I insist that you put up that gun."

Lorrain laughed contemptuously, and there was not a trace of fear in his laughter. "I shall not put up the gun," he said. "I hate you. You must not think that because I condescended to live with ruffians for a while, that I shall also brawl with them. You are nothing but a bully. I have nothing to win or lose in life now, and before I leave I am going to get even with you."

I am going to have a private room in the future. Why, Lorrain, he began to talk to him. "What had we better do with him?" asked Lorrain.

"I shall take him away," replied Lorrain. "No matter what Lorrain says, he is still my brother. Tell Mr. Bannington that I shall return as soon as possible."

"Have you a blue ribbon?" asked Lorrain.

"Yes, I have," said Lorrain, and he handed Lorrain to his feet and after he had walked him about for a few moments, he put his arm around his waist and supported him from the office.

"Help me straighten this office," said Lorrain.

"Tell me, how did it happen?" asked Lorrain.

As Lorrain talked he worked busily, and in a few moments the office was set to rights and the two in charge had taken their places behind the wire screen in the outer office.

Emil arranged his loose papers methodically, sharpened his pencil and set down a formidable row of figures. Suddenly he raised his head, and pointing his index finger slightly above Lorrain's head, he said, so emphatically: "Lorrain, I am convinced that while he continued to beat him with his left hand."

"You have killed him, you have killed him!" he screamed, almost raving. "I'll have your life for this! He was worth a dozen such curs as you! You coward, you sneak!"

Lorrain and Dick had reached him by this time, but Lorrain in his rage was a match for all three of them, and when they grasped his arms he loosened his hold on Lorrain and shook them from him as though they had been children.

Lorrain sank in a heap, and after a glance at his brother, he turned the still body of the dog. "Poor little fellow," he said, brokenly, "right in the center of the forehead!"

Dick no longer felt any of the restraints of civilization; he turned to the fallen man as if to tear him asunder, but was stopped by Lorrain's upraised hand and quiet words. "Please don't, sir. I fear you have gone too far already."

Lorrain was kneeling beside Lorrain, and something in his face and manner awakened Dick's suppling decency and he rose to his feet.

"Here is the bullet in the edge of the table," said Lorrain, who had been making an examination.

Dick instantly looked at the embedded bullet, and he saw that it was a Remington-Union bullet, which had been designed for the strenuous uses of an active and venturesome career, and exclaimed: "Dick, all forgotten of the industrial chaos which he had helped to produce, picked up the bulldog and rushed into the outer office, where Emil was busy putting rapidly following the fate of the increasingly prosperous penny. "Emil," he called, "telephone a doctor to come to the office. Please don't let the bullet wound."

For the thorough study of philosophy and economics amid scenes of turmoil and violence, it is necessary to cultivate abnormal powers of concentration. Emil slowly raised his head and explained: "I have figured it to the fifth thousand years, at every year it larger grows and by now—"

"What shall we do with Lorrain?" inquired Lorrain, who had returned.

"I don't care," answered Dick, shortly. "Throw him in the garbage barrel if you want to. Clean up the office, tell all callers that I'll be back in a few minutes, and send that doctor to Fenton's."

Dick slammed the door after him, and Emil climbed down from his stool and wandered curiously into the private office.

"Why, there must a fight have been," he said, in surprise. "No wonder it held my attention to hold to my work."

HUNTER'S RIFLE BULLET WOUNDS YOUNG WOMAN

Miss Mary Loftus Has Narrow Escape From Death at Riverdale, Md.

Reckless shooting by hunters in the neighborhood of Riverdale, Md., came near causing the death of Miss Mary Loftus, who lives with Dr. and Mrs. Bennett of that town, yesterday afternoon.

She was struck in the head just above the right temple by a twenty-two-caliber rifle ball and seriously injured.

Miss Loftus was standing beside a table shortly before 4 o'clock when the rifle ball crashed through a window glass and imbedded itself in her head. Dr. Bennett, in a Texas and Miss Loftus at once called Mrs. Bennett, who came rushing to her assistance. Believing Miss Loftus was dangerously hurt, Mrs. Bennett had Dr. Latimer, summoned.

After an examination he found that the bullet had imbedded itself within an inch of Miss Loftus' temple, and, after probing for some time, he managed to remove the leaden missile. The patient is doing well today and on the road to recovery.

The authorities of the section are making strenuous efforts to locate the guilty party. There have been a number of complaints made by the residents of Riverdale section recently that boys and other hunters have been going through the neighborhood, killing and carrying away.

School Lunchroom Opens.

The new lunchroom, at Chevy Chase School, which is to be run on a business basis under the supervision of the principal of the school, has been opened. Lunches are served to children daily. The Chevy Chase Home and School Association, which is to meet tonight in the school, will serve refreshments from the lunchroom.

Reception to Dr. Davidson.

The faculty of Central High School has issued invitations for a reception at the school late this afternoon in honor of William M. Davidson, superintendent of public schools of the District of Columbia, and Mrs. Davidson.

Want Beautiful Hair? Then Try This Shampoo

(Old Method on Beauty.)
"It is a well known fact that wet shampoos work injury to both hair and scalp, as all contain more or less potash and 'free' alkali, necessary to create a lather. These two chemical elements destroy the vitality of the hair glands and delicate tissues, and drenching the head to remove the latter usually aggravates the condition."

"A very dry shampoo that is cleansing and beneficial to hair and scalp can be made by mixing 4 ounces of either olive oil or corn meal with 4 ounces of water. A tablespoon of lemon juice added to this mixture will give it a pleasant odor. The hair is brushed well through the hair, cleanses and calibrates the scalp, takes every particle of dirt and oil from the hair, and leaves it soft, glossy and easy to dress."

Raise in Water Tax Denounced.

The District Commissioners were denounced for raising the water tax by the members of the District of Columbia Woman's Suffrage League, at a meeting held last night. It was suggested that meters be installed in dwellings and departments in order to remedy the deficit.